

ABNER DAVIS FOUND GUILTY

Oklahoma City, June 4.—Abner Davis, former president of the Night and Day Bank of this city, and former holder of the Oklahoma City baseball franchise in the Texas league and the Oklahoma state league, was found guilty of using the mails to defraud in the United States district court Monday morning.

The jury in the case, which had been out since Friday night, agreed on a verdict Sunday, and announced that it was ready to report when court opened at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning. The verdict of guilty was rendered on the second indictment, which covered the circulation of the statement of the condition of the Night and Day bank on November 10, 1910, as made to the state bank commissioner. The government alleged that this was not a true statement of the condition of the bank and introduced the books of the bank, now in the possession of the state banking board, in support of this allegation.

The verdict was not guilty on the first indictment, which contained four counts, based on the circulation by Davis of letters and newspaper advertisements offering for sale stock in the Night and Day bank, in which extravagant statements were made in regard to the value of the stock and its desirability as an investment. Under the instructions of the court, the jury had to decide that Davis himself did not believe in the truth of these statements at the time when they were made, in order to convict on that indictment.

Judge Cottrell allowed attorneys for the defense time to file a motion for a new trial or arrest of judgment and has not yet set a time for passing sentence on Davis. It is probable that the case will be appealed to the United States circuit court of appeals.

Mrs. Schley Pensioned.

Washington, June 4.—The senate today agreed to an $150 a month pension for Mrs. Schley after it had first rejected by 42 to 19 an amendment proposed by the pension committee to cut the amount to $50 a month. It was stated during the debate that Mrs. Schley's present income was $420 a year.

SUMMARY AND COMMENT ON AGRICULTURAL BILL.

(By Martin J. Bentley.)

Through your liberal columns I desire to bring to the notice of the thinking public of the northwestern states, the discussion had in the senate of the United States on the Agricultural appropriation bill. The concluding speech on this bill was by Hon. George E. Chamberlain and is a general summary covering entirely that feature of the bill relating to the forest reserves, their management, and a complete exposure of the methods employed by the Big Interests, and particularly the land grant railroads and the lumber barons. The tables furnished and the figures given by him I shall mention in part, because I apprehend that the busy public will not find the time or opportunity to read the Congressional Record of May 21st, 1912, or those of the preceding four days of the debate. Mr. Chamberlain's observations beginning on page 7255.

The appropriations for this branch of the public service for the fiscal year 1902 were $185,040. During the period from 1902 to 1911, these appropriations gradually increased, until the amount appropriated reached the sum of $5,954,898.52. The total income from all sources from the forest reserves for 1911, was $2,026,906.15. The discrepancy in the appropriations for the period referred to were the difference between the total appropriations of $22,577,901.57, the receipts received covering the same period amounting to $10,377,868.45. From this tabulation the public may observe that in lieu of the timber that has been taken under this system of conservation, we have thrown in a cash donation with it of the difference between approximately twenty-three million and ten and one-fourth million dollars.

More startling however, than these figures, was the clear and concise showing how the public had been plundered, and disclosing the conduct of the late, but in the West not lamented, Ex-Secretary Hitchcock, showing the methods countenanced and employed in permitting the railroads to exchange or rather to swap their lava beds and desert wastes that were included within the forest reserves, for the choicest of the Nation's timber, which they carefully selected in twenty-two states of the union, ranging from Alabama in the Southeast to and including the Pacific Coast states, and amounting in the aggregate to 1,264,862 acres.

That such a swap as this, trading something of no value whatever and often to the owner worse than nothing because it bore taxes that could not be evaded, treeless land in a forest reserve, the forest land without the reserve, could have been consummated under the eye or even with the connivance of the head of the Interior department certainly entitles all of us to awaken to the fact that a public office is not a public trust.

It may be recalled and be of interest to those who recall the period when this scandalous exchange was being made, that the Commissioner of the General Land Office was from the state of Oregon, and of interest now to know that it was shown by Senator Chamberlain that the commissioner lost his position, and that his regard for attempting to bring to public notice the incubacy of this national steal was a batch of federal indictments. The Hitchcock indictment and the iron heel of the federal law was felt not only by the honest officer in the highest places, but its sting reached the humble homesteader, and was used to such an extent that it will ever be a blot on the history of the conduct of our Government of that period.

The wise heads of the East either remained silent or joined the Western States in their denunciation, not of conservation, but of the practices and abuses that have resulted from the administration of and growing out of forestry service. It is impossible in a newspaper letter to more than give a synopsis of the general debate. It covered a period of nearly five days and took the widest range. It appears that it was in this discussion that for the first time in Congress, the idea was put forth forcibly that the land, the wood, the water, and the mineral, and all the resources within the boundaries of the states should be administered by the State, and for the benefit of those who came to develop, use and enjoy them, rather than that they should be administered through the Federal Government and by those whose only interest is a salaried one. The Senator from the new State, Mr. Fall submitted the novel and interesting proposition that his state would, if permitted, administer the forest reserves within its boundaries and with out the cost of a single penny to the Federal Government, notwithstanding that $100,000.00 of public funds are now annually paid for that purpose. The trend of the whole debate was a vigorous protest against the further encroachment of the Federal Government upon the rights of the people of the States.

Another feature of the debate will be of interest to the Western people and should be of interest to every citizen regardless of section because it shows the operations of two plans which in conjunction would ultimately take all the available timber of the Nation accessible to transportation, and with large annual cash bonuses thrown in, and for nothing. Lien Scrip took care of the railroad indemnity lands and one class of speculators, and that equally nice sounding term, "ripe and mature timber," appears to be the other instrument, but specially designed to take care of the last but not least, the lumber baron.

This term, "ripe timber," is hardly susceptible of any possible definition, but its application to the timber in the forest reserve as now applied, seems to mean any tree, dead or alive, susceptible of being manufactured into timber with profit. As I understand it, the Senators from the Western States and particularly the Senator from Oregon, are enthusiastic conservationists, as I believe are a great majority of our people, yet I fail to see how the term "conservation" can be made to apply where the surface of these forests is being denuded of the mercantile timber, leaving nothing to conserve except the stumps and tree tops and the prospect of future timber. It developed that the treeless forest reserves of some of the desert regions, the chief occupation of the forester, while waiting for the timber to appear upon the latest desert that the hot air of political reformer is ultimately supposed to fan into forest growth, and the ripe timber expert, is chiefly in the indictment of the few lonely settlers in the remote and isolated fastnesses of the treeless forest for some technical infraction of the Federal law, in their defense of which the expense incurred so impoverishes them that they are compelled to give up even their humble homes that their locations may be had for Ranger Stations.

The coyote and the gila monster, the owl and the rattlesnake, may survive the presence of these political forest monarchs, but it is doubtful if the plainsman and the Indian fighter and those who have blazed the way for the civilization that has made the presence of these fake foresters possible, will long survive their presence, unless, with their superior knowledge and better use of firearms they shall revert to the rule of the six-shooter days.

This bill carries an appropriation of more than $18,000,000, approximately $12,000,000 of which is for the administration of the Agricultural Department. Little attention, however, was given to agriculture. And I therefore will venture some observations of my own as to this feature of the bill. It was stated in this debate that the Indian population of our country was being supervised to death, which leads me to the suggestion isn't our farmer population being educated to death. Is there any consistency in the theory that the political parasite who does not know how to farm, who would starve to death if either the labor or intelligence was required of him to extract a living from the choicest 160 acres of land, should be offered and housed in this the most beautiful of cities, hundreds of them drawing salaries as high as $3,500 per annum, laboring in a beautiful office in a marble structure from 9 in the morning until 4 in the afternoon, while the man, perhaps of equal and often of more intelligence, though less fortunate politically, toils from early morn till the sun is set often with his good wife by his side with a hoe, neither receiving more than one dollar per day; and such may be found toiling from spring to autumn, eating the first and the last meal of the day by candle light, and within thirty miles of these ornate temples of agricultural and political preferment. The man with the hoe and the man with the pen. The man man with a pull, and the man without. Of course the man with the hoe, if perchance a voter, is sure of his annual contribution of free garden seeds, though he toils to pay the salary of $7,500 of the donor, to whom practically all the world is free, and yet we are told of the grand free life of the farmer and of the sacred rights of the laborer.

It is my opinion that the monthly effusions of agriculture knowledge and the enormous multiplicity of theories that are being propounded and advocated to the agriculturists, will ultimately so confuse and over-educate him that sooner or later we will reach a period when the farmer like his more favored brother of city and political agricultural knowledge, will so turn his attention to books and theories that his fields will be left to grow in weeds and that agriculture will deteriorate from over-education rather than from the practical horse sense that has in the past or to the near present made us the agricultural nation of the world, excepting the French republic.

FRISCO WILL INSTALL SPEED REGISTERS

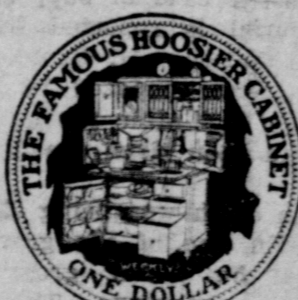

The Frisco having tested a device for recording the speed on locomotives by using it on twenty-five passenger engines, has found results so satisfactory that the forty new passenger engines which have been purchased will all be equipped with these speed recorders.

Mr. W. C. Nixon, vice-president of the Frisco, states that it is the intention of the company to equip every main line engine with this device by which the engineer can determine exactly the speed at which he is running, and which also leaves a record behind, which can be checked up as a guard against running at too high a rate of speed.

SMITH'S

NORMAL ENROLLMENT OVER THREE HUNDRED

The second week of the ten weeks summer term of the normal has started off with an enrollment of 305 and as new students are coming in every day, these figures will likely be considerably larger before the close of the week. A gratifying feature is the fact that the students are from every section of the state, proving how well the Adas school has established its reputation for thorough work and first class training.

Every department of the school is now busy and both instructors and students are putting forth most earnest efforts. The result will be seen hereafter in a better grade of teachers for schools of all classes. School boards who do not give the preference to the teachers who thus qualify themselves for better work at heavy expense in money and time are standing in their own light, and will have no kick coming if they fail to get good results by employing inferior teachers.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Occupies Prominent Place on State Program Next Week.

The work of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor will be given prominent places in the state program of Oklahoma Christian Missionary society which convenes with Ada First Christian church June 10th to 13th.

The hour devoted to this department is Wednesday a. m. 9 to 12. June 12. Clay T. Runyon, the state superintendent of C. E., will preside over the meeting. Among the speakers at that hour is W. H. Cox, who is president of the local organization of C. E.

A business meeting was held last evening of the local C. E. and plans were made for the convention. Ada has a good strong society and will put forth special effort that the C. E. department lack nothing.

Preparing to Hear Contesting Claims

Chicago, June 3.—With the arrival of several members of the national committee, among them Pearl Wight of Louisiana, in addition to the active heads of the sub-committee on arrangements, the preliminaries to the republican national convention took on a business-like turn late Saturday.

Secretary William Hayward announced that a total of 228 contests for seats had been filed. The arrangements for the work of the committee in hearing contests practically had been completed Saturday night. The hearings have been set for June 6.

Colonel H. S. New of Indianapolis, chairman of the sub-committee on arrangements, said it would be physically impossible to take care of the newspapers, which, within the last few days have indicated a desire to be accommodated with seats for their representatives.

"Originally there were 434 press seats," said Colonel New. "That number has been increased to 530 and that is the final limit. The allotments have all been made and there will be no additions or changes."

Republican Primary in West Virginia. To Divert Immigration from Canada.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 4.—Republicans of West Virginia are holding a state-wide primary today for the selection of candidates for governor and other state officers and seventeen members of the state committee. Spirited contests are on for the gubernatorial nomination and other places on the state ticket, but chief interest centers in the fight for the control of the state organization. Though the primary does not include candidates for the United States senate the results are expected, nevertheless, to have an important bearing on the contest for the seat of United States Senator Clarence Watson, whose successor will be elected by the next legislature.

Seattle, Wash., June 4.—Nearly one thousand delegates are in the city to attend the Northwestern Development Congress, which opens tomorrow. Influential delegations, in nearly every instance headed by the governor of the state, are on hand from California, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Minnesota, Arizona, Utah, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, South Dakota and North Dakota. Many matters of importance will be considered during the three days' meeting. The principal ones will, however, be the question of a uniform public lands policy and proposed legislation which will assist the Northwestern states in more rapid development and to stem the tide of emigration to western Canada.

Champ Clark has added Idaho to his list of instructed states. His boom continues to grow.

"Neosho Needs You," is the slogan of the hustling Missouri town. Many other places have slogans equally as expressive, but Ada has never adopted one that will fit every occasion. Who has a good one to propose?

Some real fun will begin at Chicago Thursday when the republican national committee meets to hear the claims of contesting delegations. Both sides express confidence in the outcome of the convention and both declare that they will stand for no foolishness.

The socialists are continually denouncing the poll tax, yet no socialist can vote in a socialist election unless he is a member in good standing of some socialist local. To be a member in good standing, one must carry a red card which costs the comrade $3.00 per year. Thus while denouncing the poll tax the socialists themselves really levy a poll tax amounting to three dollars.

The advice President Taft sometime ago gave Americans to the effect that the best way to keep out of trouble in Mexico was to come back across the Rio Grande, was perhaps the best possible for the occasion. If the Greasers should break loose and butcher a few hundred, Uncle Sam would probably send his army down there and clean up on the entire bunch, but that would not restore the lives of the American citizens who had already fallen.

There was a time when mud slinging was considered a part of every political campaign and to be looked for as a matter of course. That day has passed, however, and people are more often disgusted by the mud slinger than favorably impressed. The man who has no merits of his own upon which to base his candidacy and who must rely upon the shortcomings of his opponent for campaign thunder, is usually relegated to the rear, a rightly so. If he has no other reason to give for his own election than that, he certainly has little claim on the people whether he is candidate for president of the United States or constable of a backwoods precinct.

NO FILTH, NO FLIES.

"Swat-the-fly" campaigns for 1912 are well on. The elimination of this filthy and dangerous insect is a desirable end. The house-fly, in addition to being a demonstrated agent in the spreading of typhoid, is strongly suspected, on more or less conclusive evidence, with relation to a large number of infections, including cholera, dysentery, the infantile diarrheas, diphtheria and contagious ophthalmia. About a billion flies were killed in various campaigns of 1911 statement which seems impressive until one considers the number of flies which escaped the slaughter. In Washington, D. C., alone, some 7,000,000 flies were killed by the "swat," the trap, drowning, sulphur fumes and even by electrocution. Dr. Howard, of the Bureau of Entomology, points out that in the congenial climate of that city seven generations of flies may be produced in a single summer. One female fly will lay on an average a batch of 120 eggs; and if all these eggs from a batch laid in the middle of April should hatch and reproduce their kind in like manner, there would be by autumn, from a single female fly, a progeny of nearly six thousand billion. And as each female may lay four batches of eggs, the figures for their unchecked development through a summer stagger the imagination. To "swat the fly" by the billion, therefore, means little, says The Journal of the American Medical Association, so long as those that survive have unchecked opportunity for breeding. There is even more weight, therefore, in Stockbridge's statement that during 1911 filthy breeding places were cleaned up, which, if left alone, would have given opportunity for the propagation of incalculable billions. Better than "swatting" the fly is the prevention of its breeding by cleaning up the places where it thrives—the insanitary privy, the dead dog and horse allowed to lie unburied until putrid, the dung-heap, the uncovered garbage can and the spittoon. How this can be done, can be learned from the health departments of many states and municipalities, and from civic league and like organizations.

W. B. (BILL) ADAIR ANNOUNCES FOR SHERIFF

W. B. Adair authorizes the News to announce his candidacy for sheriff of Pontotoc county, subject to the action of the democratic primary in August.

Mr. Adair is a native of Jackson county, Tex., being born and reared in that section when the Comanches made frequent raids. His life has been spent in new countries, and a great portion of his life has been spent on the cattle range, where there is no place for men without nerve.

Mr. Adair settled in Pontotoc county sixteen years ago, and he is therefore a real pioneer, having been here during the entire time of development from the wilderness to the prosperous country we have today.

It is hardly necessary to say that he has always been on the side of law and order and lent his services to the cause of good government. He has had ample experience as an officer, having served three years on the police force of Ada, and as deputy sheriff and constable almost ever since statehood.

Mr. Adair has no promises to make further than that if elected he will put forth every effort to enforce the law, and his past record is sufficient guarantee that he will make his word good. He expects to make a clean campaign and run strictly on his own record and merits and invites the closest investigation of his record both as a citizen and as an officer.

CRATERS ARE QUIET

Violent Eruptions in Islands of Samoa at End.

Scientists Say Centuries Are Likely to Pass Before There Will Be Another Flow of Lava From Volcano.

San Francisco.—The volcanic outbursts that for over six years have terrorized the island of Savaii, in the Samoan group, have ceased at last. These eruptions have been almost incessant, and there is no record of any other volcanic center that has been so violently active for so long a time. All the terrific energy of the Matakavanu volcano seems now to have been expended. Dr. K. Sapper, Dr. W. Grevel and other students of volcanic phenomena express the opinion that there probably will be no other eruption of Matakavanu for another century and perhaps never.

The ground for their belief that the volcanic energy has been entirely exhausted is that since the first month of 1911 there has been a gradual and uninterrupted decline of energy, until every trace of it finally disappeared in October last.

In August last the lake of molten lava was covered with a hard crust, but cracks in its surface still revealed the rosy light of the superheated matter below, and through one or another volcanic vent a little smoke was still rising. Three months later a cold surface covered everything. There was not a trace of smoke, not a sulphurous odor, no sign of fluid lava, nothing except a little steam here and there.

So this is the end, perhaps for generations, of the remarkable phenomena that specialists have traveled from Europe to study. The trouble has been that they have found little advantage ground from which to pursue their work. The ebullitions have been so continuous that it has been impossible to witness the phenomena and their results except at long range.

There was no volcano where these eruptions, beginning in August, 1905, were centered. All the many volcanoes in the island had been quiescent for over a century. Suddenly volcanic vents were opened on the floor of a deep valley about eight miles from the northeast coast of Savaii. The whole valley was soon filled with lava. The ejecta built up a ridge of lava, about 1,000 feet thick where the valley had been; and above the ridge arose a mountain of outpourings 2,000 feet high, to which the name of Matakavanu was given. Over 30 square miles of the island were finally covered to various depths with the fluid lava, destroying many native houses with their areas of cultivation.

It has been estimated that at times the outpouring of lava from the center of eruption amounted to from 2,000 to 3,000 tons a minute. The coral reef, about five miles from the shore, is the outer boundary of the lagoon between the coast and the reef. The lagoon has been entirely filled with lava for a distance of about five miles along the coast and a long lava ridge was built up in the sea beyond the coral reef. The neighboring salt waters became a superheated caldron, killing millions of corals and fish; and many fish, thus cooked, were collected and eaten by the natives.

JUNK SHOPS TO HAVE CRAFT

Nipic, of Civil War Fame, Outlives Her Usefulness Even as a Naval Prison Vessel.

Seattle.—The old war vessel Nipic, for many years the prison ship of the Puget Sound navy yard, has been condemned as unsanitary and will be sold at auction and broken up. She will be succeeded as a prison vessel by the cruiser Philadelphia, built in 1888.

The Nipic has a historic record. The side-wheeler was built in 1863 and was in the South Atlantic blockade squadron during the Civil war. In July, 1862, the Nipic, in company with the Lancaster, Quinnebaug and Galena, was present at the bombardment of Alexandria, Egypt, by the British fleet.

The old timer's career was nearly ended during the two days' hurricane at Apia, Samoa, in March, 1889. The war craft was driven ashore and seven of her men lost in the tempest. A week later she was floated and headed for Honolulu for repairs. The passage to the Hawaiian port was made with jury rudder, deformed screw and with all the outside keel gone and the hull leaking badly. The Nipic is built of wood and contains much valuable oak and walnut as well as copper and brass trimmings.

Corpses Halts Funeral.

Paris.—A case of supposed premature burial is reported from Medenay, near Toulouse. M. Gaston, a small farmer, was supposed to have died suddenly and after the death certificate had been given the funeral took place.

When earth was being shoveled on the coffin one of the grave diggers thought he heard groans coming from the open grave. The men stopped work and as they heard sounds they sent for a doctor and raised the coffin. The lid was wrenched off and the shroud torn aside. The grave diggers say it was evident that the body, which was still warm, had moved.

When the doctor arrived he tried artificial respiration, but he was too late.

Penny

"Penny—Penny Mulligan!" whispered Miss Gabin of the notion counter.

The young girl with two long, thick braids of red hair leaned down from the bundle counter overhead.

"Well?" she replied crisply.

"Have you seen the new floor-walker?"

"No—where is Mr. Freer?"

"Transferred to the upholstery. It's a shame, too. He certainly is a gentleman!"

Miss Gabin patted the blond puffs of her elaborate coiffure and sighed audibly. "He certainly is a gentleman," she repeated.

"He is," returned Penny. She turned back to her labors of wrapping parcels.

"You certainly are swift, Penny," murmured the stout bundle girl.

"It's a dull day," said Penny, yawning.

Ever since she had run away from her home in the middle West to become an actress, Penelope had been on the lookout for people from home. True she had written back to her uncle and aunt, telling them that she was earning her living and when she said that she was "acting" how could that unsophisticated couple suspect that the part she was playing was the very practical one of bundle counter girl in a department store.

She had given her name as Penny Mulligan, when in fact she bore the charming title of Penelope Marston.

Arthur Preston had asked her to marry him and had been haughtily dismissed by the stage-struck girl. "I cannot marry any one, Arthur," she said, condescendingly. "I have a car-er before me, you know?"

"Pooh!" the practical Arthur had said—he was a real estate agent and very live and up-to-date in his native town—"pooh, honey, you can't act!"

"I will show you!" Penny had said, wrathfully.

"Penny—Penny Mulligan!" shrilled Miss Gabin during another lull in the business of this rainy day.

"What is it?" asked Penny languidly as she leaned over the railing.

"There he is!"

"Whom do you mean?" Penny was not interested, but she strove to be polite.

"The new floorwalker. He's standing there by the perfumery—his back is this way. He's lovely looking!"

Penny looked and saw a tall, massively built young man garbed in the conventional black of the store standing with his hands loosely clasped behind his back. He looked—oh, so much like Arthur Preston, but of course that was absurd!

"Yes, isn't he?" she managed to say, carelessly in response to Miss Gabin's last remark.

Later she happened to glance downward, and her blue eyes met the calm, cool gaze of the new floorwalker. His glance passed from her face to that of the other bundle girl, and then he passed on his leisurely way down the store. It was Arthur Preston.

When she had an opportunity she asked Miss Gabin the name of the new floorwalker.

"The most romantic name you ever heard, Penny! Miss Clark from the office told me—his name is Claude Reston."

Penny darted back to her work, conscious that Miss Gabin was holding an animated conversation with Mr. Claude Reston.

"How dare he come here under an assumed name?" fumed Penny.

She snapped the string viciously and the fat parcel flew out of her hands and fell plump upon the sleek, black head of the new floorwalker.

Miss Gabin shrieked becomingly as Mr. Reston gracefully disentangled himself from the shower.

"Ain't you afraid you'll get fired, Penny?" gasped the fat girl.

"I don't care!" flared Penny recklessly. "I'm going to leave anyway, to-night."

Some one was coming up the steep little stair of the bundle counter. A ruffled black head, a pair of black eyes, a pair of broad shoulders, a big hand holding forth the ragged bundle of false hair.

"Here, Penelope," he said coolly. "Please don't do that again."

Penny was speechless with indignation, as she took the package from him and their hands touched. He disappeared at once, and Penny proceeded to wrap the bundle carefully. It required elaborate care, for great tears were welling in her blue eyes. The tears splashed upon the package, and she thrust it violently toward the tube.

To Penny's horror, it leaped over the rail and descended almost at the feet of the new floorwalker!

"Gee!" giggled the fat girl.

Penny was frozen with mortification, as once more Mr. Reston climbed the stairs and handed the package to the girl.

"I'll be waiting for you at six o'clock, Penelope," he whispered softly. "If we hurry we can take the train tomorrow morning and I promised your Aunt Susan that if she would make the wedding preparations I'd bring the bride. You wouldn't want to disappoint Aunt Susan, would you?"

"No," whispered Penelope, meekly.

"Gee!" muttered the fat girl once more.

"The nerve!" glared Miss Gabin.

"Oh, joy!" sang Penelope's heart.

Lady and the Carpenter.

A French lady living in London engaged a carpenter to do some work for her at a stipulated price. She was surprised later to find that he charged her more than the price agreed upon. When she attempted to remonstrate with him, however, her English failed her, and she said: "You are dearer to me now that when we were first engaged."

Brought Up to Date.

Ships medicine chests for the British merchant service have undergone regulation, the new requirements of the board of trade abolishing many obsolete drugs and substituting modern medicines in tablet form.

COMMITTS SUICIDE

Sulphur, Okla., June 3.—E. F. Wortham, a local insurance man, ended his life at 12:45 o'clock Monday by cutting his throat with a pocket knife, almost severing his head from his body. He ate his dinner at the hotel as usual and went back to his office and was talking to the Wells-Fargo agent at 12:30 who officed in the same room and was just leaving for dinner. He was discovered dead fifteen minutes later by the Frisco agent. He left no statement, but it is supposed that worry over separation from his family a few years ago, together with financial depression is the cause.

DISTRICT COURT PASSES

ON DEBT FUNDING

This morning the final steps in the matter of funding the indebtedness of the county were approved by Judge McKeown and everything is being pushed as rapidly as the commissioners are able.

It is not known just exactly what the total indebtedness will figure up, but it will be in the neighborhood of $18,000.

Besides this matter the commissioners have been transacting the regular routine work of their positions.

The council held a short session last evening and adjourned until Thursday afternoon at which time it will take up the remaining claims growing out of the Byrd's Mill pipe line. Alderman Timberlake tendered his resignation which was accepted.

S.S.S. NATURE'S PERFECT TONIC

Something more than an ordinary tonic is required to restore health to a weakened, run-down system; the medicine must possess blood-purifying properties as well, because the weakness and impurity of the circulation is responsible for the poor physical condition. The blood does not contain the necessary quantity of rich, red corpuscles and is therefore a weak, watery stream which cannot afford sufficient nourishment to sustain the system in ordinary health. A poorly nourished body cannot resist disease, and this explains why so many persons are attacked by a spell of sickness when the use of a good tonic would have prevented the trouble. In S.S.S. will be found both blood-cleansing and tonic qualities combined. It builds up weak constitutions by removing all impurities and germs from the blood, thus supplying a certain means for restoring strength and invigorating the system. The healthful, vegetable ingredients of which S.S.S. is composed make it a splendidly fitted to the needs of those systems which are delicate from any cause. It is Nature's Perfect Tonic, free from all harmful minerals, a safe and pleasant acting medicine for persons of every age. S.S.S. aids the body of that tired, worn-out feeling so common at this season, improves the appetite and digestion, tones up the stomach, acts with pleasing effects on the nervous system, and reinvigorates every portion of the body.

FAMOUS "BONEHEAD" PLAYS ON MAJOR LEAGUE DIAMONDS

Explained by Leading Baseball Players to
HUGH S. FULLERTON

BY JOHN J. EVERS,

Second Baseman Chicago Cubs, Who Has for Years Been Rated as the Quickest Thinker of the Modern Game.

Sancho Panza's Tribute to Sleep.
Now, blessings light on him that first invented this same sleep! It covers a man all over, thoughts and all, like a cloak; it is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold and cold for the hot. It is the current coin that purchases all the pleasures of the world cheap and the balance that sets the king and the shepherd, the fool and the wise man, even—Cervantes.

Alpine Flowers of Mt. Rainier.
Thousands of feet above the sea level, on Mt. Rainier, in the state of Washington, there is a wonderful natural garden of wild flowers. Some of them grow at the very brink of the glaciers, and others even push their way up through melting snow fields in late spring. These little known species would greatly enrich our alpine gardens if we could find out how to transplant and acclimatize them, and undoubtedly some day we shall learn—Country Life in America.

If you have the itch, don't scratch. It does not cure the trouble and makes the skin bleed. Apply BAL-LARD'S SNOW LINIMENT. Rub it in gently on the affected parts. It relieves itching instantly and a few applications removes the cause thus performing a permanent cure. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Ramsey Drug Co.

The Difference.
Men think most of the present—the immediate; and rightly, their calling being to do and to work. Women, on the other hand, more of how things hang together in life; and rightly, too, because their destiny—the destiny of the families—is bound up in this interdependence, and it is exactly this which it is their mission to promote.—Goethe.

Lesson All Should Learn.
Plutarch said to the Emperor Trajan: "Let your government commence in your own breast, and lay the foundation of it in the command of your temper and passions." Here come in the words self-control, duty, and conscience.—S. Smiles.

ting between the fielders, in which case it would have been a home run for Cobb, and as the score was close it would have given Detroit the lead right there. The ball came to Slagle in such an awkward position, and he had to try so hard to reach it at all, that he could not recover in time to get the ball back quickly, and I ran out about thirty feet to meet his throw. Cobb had rounded first and was coming down to second with all his might. I could hear him but couldn't see him. Slagle threw the ball to me, and I tried a play that seemed wise and forty. I expected Cobb to overrun the base a little and come back, and as I caught Slagle's throw I swung and ran for the bag, without looking, intending to slide at him and try to keep him from getting back to the base. I was within ten feet of the bag and running hard when I discovered that my plan was all wrong. Cobb had slowed up as he came to second base, taken one glance at me, saw what I was trying to do, and instead of stopping, turned second base at top speed and was sprinting as hard as he could for third. I was so surprised that I hesitated for a second, took a high, wild shot at third, threw the ball ten feet over Steinfeld's head into the crowd, and before Steinfeld could find that ball the Tigers were ahead.

It was the first bit of Cobb's wonderful base running we ever had seen, and I for one didn't try to kid him much after that; only I kept quiet and waited for a chance to pull off something on him. We came from behind and won the game anyhow, but I tell you I felt relieved when it was over and I knew my piece of slow thinking hadn't given the Tigers the game as well as the lead.

Ted Easterly's Glove.
Every man on the Nap squad has respect for Ted Easterly's catcher's mitt. Every man has taken his turn at trying to wield it in warming up, and each one has tossed it aside after taking half a dozen throws. "It weighs about a ton," said one of the squad. "When I use my own glove after handling that thing I'm light-handed, and can't place my glove for five or ten minutes."

Growth of Checks.
The check has become, by the evolution of events, a document having a clearly defined legal status; its form is protected, like the bank note and the bond, against counterfeiting and alteration, and it is charged with the function of carrying on the world's exchanges with a convenience and safety and to an extent which give to it in many respects predominance over coin and bank notes.—Bankers Magazine.

A bilious, half-sick feeling, loss of energy, and constipated bowels can be relieved with surprising promptness by using HERBINE. The first dose brings improvement, a few doses puts the system in fine, vigorous condition. Price 50c. Sold by Ramsey Drug Co.

Two of Four Kinds of Women.
Someone—probably one of those Frenchmen whose life job it was to make epigrams—once said that there are but two kinds of women: good women and bad women. Ever since then problem playwrights have been putting that fiction into the mouths of wronged husbands and building their "big scene" around it. But don't you believe it. There are four kinds: good women, bad women, good bad women and bad good women. And the worst of these is the last.—American Magazine.

Children that are affected by worms are pale and sickly and liable to contract some fatal disease. WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE expels worms promptly and puts the child on the road to health. Price 25c per bottle. Sold by Ramsey Drug Co.

Sensible Man.
A "Twenty-two Years Ago" item from the Wilson County Citizen: "Once in a while we hear of a man who knows of a good thing when he gets it. A citizen of Iowa whose wife eloped with another fellow received notice from a neighboring city that the couple had arrived there. He promptly telegraphed: 'Don't arrest the runaway; have decided to let them go to the devil.'—Kansas City Star.

Case of Development.
When a man reaches that time of life that he has to think of tomorrow morning—his discretion improves—naturally.

GRANDMOTHERS USED SAGE TEA

To Darken the Hair and Restore Gray and Faded Hair to Its Natural Color.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair and are fast following suit.

The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready-to-use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. As a scalp tonic and hair restorer this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers.

This remedy is sold under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented. If your hair is losing color or coming out, start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and see what a change it will make in a few days' time.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle. Special Agents, Gwin & Mays Drug Co.

FAMOUS "BONEHEAD" PLAYS ON MAJOR LEAGUE DIAMONDS

Explained by Leading Baseball Players to
HUGH S. FULLERTON

BY PAT MORAN,

Catcher Philadelphia Nationals, Who is Considered One of the Wisest and Most Cunning of the National League Veterans.

Just the instant a fellow thinks he is pulling off about the smartest and cleverest trick possible, his foot slips and he looks like the worst in the world. There is one play that I made that taught me it never is safe to laugh until the play is over, and sometimes not then. It is funny now, but it wasn't funny to me then, and it took me a season or two to appreciate the humor of it.

I guess I lost a game by that play just about as quickly and as easily as ever anyone lost one, and I think the inside story of the play is interesting just to show how much luck can figure in a game of ball.

I was with the Boston club and was catching. We were playing Pittsburgh and at the start of the ninth inning we had the game in hand, 2 to 1, with Willis pitching, and it looked as if we had them stopped and licked all the way. It looked a whole lot better when the first two Pirates that came to bat went out, for, as you know, that team never is beaten while Clarke and Wagner and some of the others are likely to come to bat. With two out good old Ginger Beaumont got to first and Fred Clarke came up and bounded one around the fences, sending Beaumont home and evening up the score. The hit was good for three bases, and Clarke had to be fast to get that far, as the Boston ground is small, but there wasn't a chance to stop him at second or to catch him at third. I saw Clarke sprinting from second to third, and seeing that the ball had been fielded I stood there at the plate yelling at the top of my voice, "Send him in!" "Send him in!" Sam Leever was coaching at third base, and hearing me yelling took it for granted that some of his own men over at the bench were shouting for him to send Clarke home, so Sam jumped up and down, yelling at Clarke to go on and waving him home. Clarke had not yet reached third base when Aubrey had the ball in the infield up near first, where it had been thrown to him by Doc Carney, our right fielder. Clarke turned third base at top speed, without looking, and it seemed to be an easy out. I was having a good laugh at the idea that I had made Leever pull off a bone-headed bit of coaching. Aubrey swung and was so surprised at seeing Clarke sprinting for the plate that he hesitated a second, got rattled and threw the ball high over my head, letting Clarke score the winning run, as we didn't score in our half of the ninth; and Pittsburgh won the game, 3 to 2.

When I saw that ball sailing over my head you may be sure I was wishing I had kept my mouth shut. I guess Sam thought the same when he saw Clarke turn third, and probably he wasn't happy when it turned out all right! And he didn't fail to mention it to me any time we saw each other in the next year or two.

The play just goes to show how things will turn in baseball. I lost the game by a "smart" piece of work, and Pittsburgh won it on a blunder; and it works out that way many times.

Trial of New Dreadnought.

Washington, D. C. June 4.—Naval officers are looking forward with much interest to the results of the builder's trial of the battleship Arkansas, which are to begin today over Rockland naval course. The Arkansas was built by the New York Shipbuilding Company, at Camden, N. J., and is the largest completed dreadnought in the world. The trials will occupy about ten days, and it is expected the giant war vessel will establish a new world's record for speed. She is equipped with turbine engines and carries a crew of 500 men. It is said to be the first trial trip of a war vessel on which lifeboat room is provided for every one on board.

Sixth State Fair of Oklahoma.

Cash prizes amounting to $50,758.00 are offered at the sixth annual Oklahoma State Fair and Exposition, Sept. 24 to Oct. 5, 1912, according to the annual Premium List just issued. The book contains 246 pages from cover to cover and is probably the most complete catalogue ever published by any fair or exposition. It is printed on a good quality of paper, handsomely bound and contains useful information about everything pertaining to agriculture, live stock, industries, etc. Much care has been shown in the arrangement of the twenty-one big departments and there are many handsome illustrations, including some of the most pretentious of the sixty big buildings and barns on the State Fair Grounds; floor plans of some of the buildings, and pictures which give some idea of the big amusement features that will be seen this fall. Pages would be required to tell everything in the big premium list which is not only the best ever issued by the Oklahoma State Fair and Exposition, but which appeared before any other premium list of any other fair in the United States. In other words, Secretary I. S. Mahan enjoys the distinction of being the first secretary to get his annual premium list ready.

Every county in the state of Oklahoma is urged to have a county exhibit this year and every person who is thinking of making an individual exhibit of anything under the sun is asked to write for a Premium List. It will be sent on application to I. S. Mahan, Oklahoma City.
